command. The previous year, it was the other way around."

Cope was made adjutant general of the United Spanish War Veterans in 1971 after her retirement from the State Department, where she was an analyst.

Her uncle, who died in the 1950s, was among the 392,000 U.S. servicemen who fought in the campaign in Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Philippines after the U.S. battleship Maine was blown up in Havana Harbor on Feb. 15, 1898.

Cope, whose late husband was a veteran of World War I, is the only woman adjutant-general of a veterans organization.

And as head of the United Spanish War Veterans, she has been invited to the White House on a number of occasions, along with the leaders of other veterans groups.

Cope, who has accumulated in her office several boxes filled with war memorabilia, is able to rattle off the background of several of her legion of former warriors.

"Mr. MacNamara is in a veterans hospital in Massachusetts. He is 98. He was a musician. And he now heads up a band at the hospital. I understand they have quite a time."

"Herman Miller was a private in the 34th Infantry. He was cited for bravery in the Philippines. He is 103. He is in Minnesota.

"Cleo Brown was also a private. He lived in Indianapolis. He died last September."
